

Darkened sky, the color of tranquility
Wet trees dripping drops of insanity
Dreams ending with the morning light
Groggy eyes, tired lies, breathing smoke on an empty night
Silence screaming through tragic thoughts
A prudent end to all that she brought

She tucks the blankets, they are her cover
From the world of hurt that comes with lovers
To speak her thoughts would make her shake
Let's sit back, roll it up and let it bake.
Let's ignore the pain, ignore the shame
Ignore the hurt that comes at hearing her name.
Let's lay in bed and never leave
Let the others sleep, let your mind find ease.
Let's not be scared, let's find a reason
To not feel alone while drinking liquor and dreamin.
Let's spend our nights ourselves but near
Mornings wrapped in arms with no room for fear
You are scared of the hurt, I am too
The alternative though has had me feeling so blue
I'll take the pain if it will mean
That the fear you feel, you will share with me.